QUENCH HOUSE FIRE
 Youngstown (Special)—what might have been a serious fire broke out in the home of A. Leishman early Sunday morning. The fire brigade was called out, and the fire brought under control by those present without resorting to the hose. A heated chimney caused the fire.

SNOWFALL DOUBLE THAT OF LAST YEAR

In the Chinook district old timers say, there has never (at any time) been as much snow as has been here this winter. There is a little snowfall nearly every day, with the roads being blocked on the highway and every where.

Since last week's blizzard the weather has been very cold with little change.

Farmers are jubilant, as the record snowfall is expected to improve crops, following the good moisture of last fall.

Missing fingers May Bring Fortune

Meteghan, N. S. (C. P.—The missing fingers of a man who died a year ago in apparent poverty on the other side of the continent may bring a Meteghan villager part of an $80,000 fortune.

Mathurin C. Roicheau died in New Orleans Feb. 1st 1937, in apparent destitute circumstances, but after he was buried it was discovered he had an estate of $80,000, and Sabin L. Robicheau of this Digby County town claimed the man was his uncle.

He said Mathurin Robicheau had two fingers missing from one hand. The body was ordered exhumed by Judge H. G. C. Case and examination substantiated Sabin's claim of identity, he said yesterday.

He was notified the estate would be settled with him recognized as of the principal heirs.

Horse Disappear In Pocket on Ice

Brooks (Special)—While crossing the lake near the depot with a team of horses and a loaded sleigh last Saturday afternoon, L. Sturm, local drayman, was surprised to see his horses suddenly disappear. They had stepped on an air pocket in the ice and dropped into 14 feet of water, leaving the sled and driver perched on the gaping hole.

A crowd soon gathered and in about 20 minutes the horses were rescued from their chilly bath by another team, pulling on long ropes from the shore of the lake.

One horse died immediately it was removed from the water. The other made a complete recovery, and the driver is still marvelling at his narrow escape.

Newly-weds Honored

A Charivari was held in the Chinook Hotel in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. Demaere (nee Ethel Young) where a large number of their friends met.

The evening was spent in dancing, the music being provided by our local musicians. A delightful lunch provided by the ladies, was served at midnight. Mr. W. Gallagher conveyed the best wishes of those present to the happy couple. The groom thanked everyone for a most enjoyable evening ably supported by his bride. The evening closed with the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

The Ladies' Card Club

The Ladies Card Club met at the home of Mrs. Morrell last week. The honors were shared by Mrs. Mortimer and Mrs. Pfeiffer. The ladies will next week at home of Mrs. Robinson.

Miss Alice Gilbertson from Youngstown was a Chinook visitor Wednesday.

Mr. N. Nystrom returned from Cereal on Saturday, where he had been relieving the section foreman.

Last Friday night's dance which was put on by the Chinook Hotel, notwithstanding the cold weather and with the roads being badly drifted the crowd was surprisingly large. The music was good.

COLDS

No family need neglect even minor head colds.

Here is what to do: Take two "Aspirin" tablets when you feel a cold coming on—with a full glass of water. Then repeat, if necessary, according to directions in each package. Relief comes rapidly.

The "Aspirin" method of relieving colds is the way many doctors approve. You take "Aspirin" for relief—then if you are not improved promptly, you call the family doctor. "Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trademark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

New Sea Lord

Sir Roger Backhouse To Be Chief Of Naval Staff

The British admiralty announced appointment of Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse to be lord commissioner of the admiralty and chief of the naval staff. The appointment carries with it the post of first sea lord. Sir Roger, who has been commander-in-chief of the home fleet, succeeds Admiral of the Fleet Lord Chatfield, who has been first sea lord since 1933. Taking over the home fleet in 1935, Sir Roger, who is 59, has had an eventful 2 1/2 years in command. No sooner had he hoisted his flag in the battleship Nelson than a large part of the fleet was ordered to the Mediterranean to watch Great Britain's sea communications as Italian transports poured through the Suez canal on their way to Ethiopia.

A year later the Spanish civil war led to further calls on Sir Roger's ships. The bulk of his fleet, however, was present at the coronation review at Spithead last May, when Sir Roger was senior flag officer in command.

WHAT HO!

—By—

"And where is this Punder you speak of so highly?" inquired the earl.

"I am Punder."

"How do you do?" said the earl. "Will you sit down?"

"I'll stand."

"As you wish, Mr. Punder; but please don't point your silk hat at me like that. Reminds me of a cannon."

Punder paid no heed to this request.

"What's all this about him taking the castle?" he demanded, regarding Ernest with a bovine glare.

"May I present Mr. Ernest Bingley?" said the earl. "One of the American lot."

"I might have guessed it," he said. "A Yank! They push in everywhere."

"Like Punders?" murmured the earl.

Punder chose to ignore this. He addressed Ernest—

"Let me tell you that whoever you are and whatever you are you can't bag this place from under Punder's nose."

"My dear Mr. Punder," said the earl, "let me speak for Mr. Bingley and say that your nose was not even on the distant horizon when he and I came to terms."

"Is that London solicitor of yours a fool or a knave or both?" Punder demanded.

"Neither," returned the earl, and he said it with warmth. "I advise you, Mr. Punder, not to make such suggestions. They are slanderous and probably actionable."

"I was just asking," said Punder.

"I had a bit of a chat with him and he said he'd write you."

"And so he did," said the earl. Then struck by a disturbing thought, he said, "Dear me! I remember now—he must have mentioned you—but he will write in long-hand—his of the old school, you know—and I wasn't sure of the name."

"Well, then, what about it?" asked Punder.

"What about what?"

"Me and the castle."

"You may go through it from stem to stern, if you wish to Mr. Punder. I've seen enough of it to know I want it," said Punder.

"I'm afraid you are too late, Mr. Punder," said the earl. "This gentleman got here first. Audientes fortuna juvat, you know."

"I don't know," said Punder.

"Meaning, in round numbers, 'First come, first served,'" said the earl.

"Now look here," said Punder, "that Scotch lawyer of yours gave me to understand that I could rent the place, with an option to buy, and I gathered that, if I made a thumping good offer, you'd sell like a shot. Well?"

"It is not my intention," said the earl, steadily, "to sell Bingley Castle like a shot or anything else. It remains in the family."

"That's what you think," said Punder.

"Correct me if I'm wrong by all means," said the earl.

"What Punder wants, Punder gets," asserted the owner of that name.

"How nice for Punder," said the earl.

"And I want this."

Punder waved a big hand in a gesture which included the castle and its grounds.

"Nothing doing," said the earl.

"That's what you think."

"I wish you wouldn't keep saying that," said the earl.

"And when I have it," went on Punder, "I'll just modernize it up a bit. Cut down a few trees. Smarten the place up. When I've spent a couple of thousand quid on paint and plumbing you don't know the old place."

"Shouldn't want to," said the earl. Ernest glanced at Lady Rosa, and saw, in her face, a look of grave concern.

"How much?"

Punder pointed his cannon hat at Ernest and discharged the question point blank at him.

"I beg your pardon, sir," said Ernest, "but I'm only the tenant."

"You're an American, aren't you?" said Punder in third-degree tones.

"Am."

"Then you know what 'how much?' means."

"I do," said Ernest, stiffly.

"Well, then, how much?"

"Is this a game?" asked the earl.

"How much for what?" asked Ernest.

"Your option or whatever you have on this place," said Punder.

When Ernest was slow in replying, Punder rushed on—

"Gouge me," he said. "I know you Yanks. If I'd known one of you was after this place I wouldn't have stopped off at Bristol yesterday to buy a cheese plant there. You got here first. All right. That's business. Gouge me."

He moved his thick chest close to Ernest as if the gouging were to be of a physical nature.

"But I don't want to gouge you, Mr. Punder," said Ernest.

"Oh, no?" snorted Punder. "And you a Yank! Haul! Innocent as a lamb you are."

"Two lambs," put in the earl.

"I see through you," Punder said, fixing Ernest with so searching an eye that Ernest felt as if he were being X-rayed. He began to perspire. He did not want to be seen through. He waited for the words which would expose him as a sham.

"You and your cute little games," snorted on Punder. "You knew Punder had his eye on this castle. It's common talk in the City. So you sneaked down here, tied it up, and now you think you have me by the ears."

"Mr. Punder," said Ernest, "you are mistaken. I haven't got you by the ears. I don't want to have you here. I'd no idea you were interested in the castle. In fact, until a minute ago, I never heard of you in my life."

This imputation of anonymity caused Punder to purple and swell in an alarming way.

"Never heard of Punder, hey?" he bellowed. "Well, you've heard of him now and you'll hear of him again."

"Really, now, Mr. Punder," said the earl, soothingly, "you must not excite yourself. You might burst. I shouldn't care to have that happen, not in my breakfast room, anyhow."

"Nobody's going to bamboozle Punder," thundered the pickle magnate.

"Of course, not," said the earl, as if he were a nurse speaking to a child. "The idea! Bamboozle Punder? I should think not."

"What do you call it then," demanded Punder, "letting a Yank do me out of my castle?"

"Is it your contention that you have a legal right to the place?" asked the earl.

"Can't sue, perhaps," grudgingly admitted Punder.

"Well, then, you must take your medicine like a little man."

"That's what you think," said Punder.

"In as few words as possible, 'Yes,'" said the earl.

"That's what you—" The earl held up his hand. "Please, Mr. Punder!" he said. "I'm sorry you had the trip down here for nothing. So, as your time must be valuable—" "Guinea a minute."

"Really? At least one pound ten I'd have said. But you know, of course."

"I know what I want, too," said Punder. "And I know how to get it, see?"

"In this case," said the earl, "I don't see."

"You've got a family motto."

"We have, Mr. Punder. It is 'Omnia Paratus'—meaning the Bingleys are ready for anything."

"Well, I've got a motto, too," said Punder, "and I made up mine myself. It is 'Nothing Stops Punder'."

"Pithy," said the earl.

"May I say something?" said Ernest.

"I was been thinking about the situation," said Ernest. "I don't want to be unfair to you, sir, or to anybody. Perhaps, since I rented the castle through what might be called a misunderstanding, I should step aside and let you have it."

"I thought so," said Punder. "It is a ramp. Hah! Another of those American hold-ups. Well, how much?"

He whipped out a check-book as if he were drawing a pistol.

A faint sound escaped from Lady Rosa. It might have been a moan.

Ernest's eyes travelled to her troubled face.

"Nothing," he said.

"Nothing?"

"I mean I'm going to keep the castle."

"Oh, yes?"

Punder pushed his big face close to Ernest's.

Ernest met his eyes.

"Oh, YES!" said Ernest. And then he lost his temper. Never in his life had he lost it before; so now, while he was about it, he made a good job of it.

"And since it is my castle, you get the hell out of it, you big stiff," he shouted.

"Easy, Ernest," said the earl.

"Easy, my eye," cried Ernest. "Crump!"

"Yes, sir?" said the hovering Crump.

Little Cottage in England Receives Fortune From Shopkeeper

Miss Annie Shaw is dead. London may not know, nor will Canada care very much. But the little village of Weston-on-Trent has been surprised out of its rural complacency to find that the village storekeeper left the community $16,000 ($80,000).

And $16,000 in this village is a lot of money, enough to build a village hall, put a peal of bells in the parish church, improve the village green and still have some "for charitable purposes beneficial to the inhabitants as a community." Miss Shaw wished for those particular things.

No one knew Miss Shaw had that much money. She retired several years ago, but her shop only closed its doors. She lived on in a sitting room behind.

Considered A Necessity

Owning A Motor Car Is No Longer Sign Of Wealth

At one time the ownership of an automobile was a sign of wealth. Now it is not very long ago, but it has departed definitely now. A survey of the United States and Canada has shown that automobile ownership among families with incomes of less than $30 a week is increasing at the rate of 1,000,000 annually. It is expected that by 1940 two-thirds of the motor cars in the two countries, or more than 15,000,000 of them, will be owned by persons in the less-than-$30 class.—Edmonton Journal.

CHEST COLDS

Relieve Their Misery
This Proved Way

WHEN there's a cold to treat—especially if it's a chest cold—there's no time to experiment. Relieve the misery with the treatment that has been doubly proved for you.

Here's What To Do: It's best to stay in bed and get lots of rest. Eat lightly, drink plenty of water, and keep elimination regular. And use your dependable Vicks VapoRub without delay.

VapoRub has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

VapoRub is direct external treatment. No "dosing"—no stomach upsets. Just massage it on throat, chest, and back. Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warm cloth.

No Long Waiting For Relief To Begin...

Almost before you finish rubbing, you begin to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break local congestion. And long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps on working.

Has Faith In West

Ottawa Farm Director Says West Will Produce As Good Crop As Ever

Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of the central experimental farm at Ottawa, told the annual meeting of the Ontario Plowmen's Association at Toronto "the story the west is doing is perfectly ridiculous."

Wheat production in the prairies had been valued at $7,150,000,000 in the past 20 years, Dr. Archibald said, "and in the next 20 years there will be another $7,000,000,000 wheat crop."

He whipped out a check-book as if he were drawing a pistol.

Postmistress At Eighty-Eight

Mrs. Helen Keys Does Work At Brewer's Mills, Ontario

His Majesty's mail is handled daily at Brewer's Mills postoffice in Ontario by Mrs. Helen Keys, aged 88 years, who, it is believed, is the oldest postal official in Canada.

Mrs. Keys, who is the widow of James Keys, is not only the postmistress in name, but actually does the work and does it well. Her husband was postmaster previous to 1926, when he died, at the age of 84.

The Postoffice Department appointed his widow his successor, and she has carried on the duties ever since.

In addition to handling the mail for the people who call at the office, Mrs. Keys had to supervise the rural delivery. Her hearing is good, she sees well, and she writes a good hand.

The oldest postmaster in point of service is believed to be William Henry Casement, who has had charge of the office in Lakefield, 10 miles north of Peterborough, since 1876. He celebrated his 83rd birthday recently.

Boy Witness Took No Chances On Court Appearance

Some time ago a friend attended court to hear a case in which he was interested. A small boy of about 10 was called to appear as witness for his father; he was an undersized lad, clad in a coat and trousers which were very much too large for him.

The judge looked fixedly at this strange apparition and demanded brusquely to be told why he had come to court in such garments.

The boy, utterly frightened, produced a printed notice and drew attention to the fact that he was commanded to attend court that day "in his father's suit!"—London Evening News.

It may be that work is good for us. When you find the most idle people, you find the most freak ideas.

MAH BROS."Buy Canadian" Is Advice
To cut unemployment

Mounting imports, which are cutting into the sales of Produced in Canada merchandise in the Dominion, and thereby helping to keep unemployment in Canada at the present high level, are given as one reason by the National Produced in Canada Association for launching a campaign to promote more interest in the sale of Produced in Canada goods among the people of Canada, according to an official statement released by the Association today.

A comparison of import figures given by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics up to the current fiscal year shows that imports from the United States, and from the United Kingdom as well, have increased by a considerable amount since 1913 in some cases they more than doubled, "and while it is realised that a percentage of the imports represents raw materials for finishing in Canada, the fact remains," the Association statement said, "that these imports are competing with the sales of merchandise produced or made in Canada and are seriously affecting the unemployment of Canadian men and women.

"The purpose of the movement now gaining ground in Canada is to show the public that it is in their own interests to insist on Canadian products on every occasion if they are satisfied with the price and quality because Canadian labor is used in their production and manufacture."

Gov't of Manitoba
Orders Alberta Coal

Winnipeg (Special) — Contracts have been awarded by the Manitoba government for supplying 30,000 tons of Western Canadian coal for heating provincial public buildings and institutions.

Varieties ordered from Alberta include: Cadomin, 5,000 tons; Kaydee, 5,000 tons; Great West, 10,000 tons; Canmore briquettes, 100 tons; Rosedale, 3,000 tons; Rose deer, 550 tons.

MORE USES FOR SILK HOSE

Grain for exhibition purposes represents several things including patience, knowledge and a brand new use for silk stockings.

In the first place, show grain must be well grown. It must be harvested carefully, and matured the same way to preserve color. Then it must be screened properly and selected. Sometimes the grain is hand-picked—a not inconsiderable chore when half bushel samples are required—and then comes the silk stocking operation.

The wheat is placed in this delicate casing and swished back and forth. It comes out free of dust, highly polished, and glowing like a ruby in a ash heap.

Curling Notes

Some of the best games of the season were played last week.

On Wednesday C. W. Riderout (trimmed) J. Gingles 9-4, W. Gallagher was forced to go to the 11th end in defeating J. Peyton's rink 7-6.

The following evening saw an other extra end game with C. W. Riderout winning over W. S. Lee 9-8. In the second game G. Aitken nosed out J. Gingles 8-7.

On Saturday W. Gallagher defeated Len Cooley 9-7 and F. Morrell won from J. Peyton 9-6.

Monday saw W. S. Lee and G. Aitken trounce their rivals J. Peyton and C. W. Riderout 11-5 and 15-5 respectively. Incidentally J. Peyton's rink has failed to chalk up a win in its last five starts.

On Tuesday the 'Kids' rink headed by F. Morrell took the cup away from L. Youell by virtue of a 9-6.

Local News

Not flying nor rolling down to Rio but leisurely sailing there aboard a luxury liner will go a happy crowd of winter cruise tourists next week when the Eagle's View of Rio for Cruise Members.

Arriving in Rio de Janeiro from New York January 15 on a West Indies and South America cruise. The glamorous Latin city that was named Rio de Janeiro because of the river was discovered by the Portuguese in 1500 and has since been the scene of many a romantic and beautiful. Certainly other parts would have to show much to rival this city, and there is no doubt that the city is one of the most beautiful in the world.

Passengers will return confirmed "Rio fans."

From the heights of the Inly Corcovado, a mountain peak on which stands a huge figure of Christ the Redeemer, the finest view of the city and harbor. Thrilling in itself is the ascent of the Sugar Loaf by aerial cable-car in two rides, first to the half-way station on Pico de Urca, then to the summit of the conical Sugar Loaf itself.

Petropolis will be the objects of excursions and each evening there will be a party excursion to enjoy the exotic night-life.

Rio is not the only port of call on this cruise. Barbados, Grenada and Jamaica are islands that will be visited during the 32 day trip, while on the mainland of South America, La Guaira, Venezuela, will share with Rio the attentions of the Empress of Australia's passengers, who will be back in New York on February 17.

Featured also are the Theatre Municipal at Rio, a view of Rio from the Corcovado showing the Sugar Loaf, the cable-car, the harbor, the latter, and the Empress of Australia, the cruise ship that will visit Rio.
